What a wonderful moment for you to have arrived...

The world will continue perfectly well for a few moments without your attention.

You may as well stay.

Perhaps you know the feeling...

You begin the day with every intention of paying attention.

Then come the errands.

The messages
The .

The things that seemed important at the time.

And before long, another beautiful day has slipped past unassumingly.

I wouldn't say, 'wasted', but unlived in some corners.

That is why this place exists...

For thoughts to drift freely.

For questions to form without deadlines.

For the rare pleasure of keeping company with yourself.

Nothing more ambitious than that.

Everything gathered here was created with a curious, bright mind at the centre...

You may be surprised what happens when a thought is given somewhere to perch.

A page becomes a conversation. A passing curiosity becomes a friend.

Life, as we know, rarely changes all at once. More often, it changes in moments like these.

These are not merely journals, workbooks, or diaries...

They are also small storytelling experiences.

Here stories unfold, curious characters appear, and reflection happens disguised as adventure. On days where you don't feel like reflecting, simply savour the entertainment.

Along the way, you will meet a character named Rahi, a fellow explorer and travelling companion who wanders the realms of The Stoen Mind alongside you.

Together, you may stumble upon places, questions, and discoveries you did not know you were looking for.

There is no need to hurry.

The journals will still be here tomorrow.

But if any happen to feel as though they have been waiting for you, then perhaps they were, and they will gladly come home with you.

ABOUT

A Small Story

Hello.

We are Esha & Prachi, two people who have, in our own curious ways, tried to explore life and the mind's play in it. And we found so many surprises along the way that we could not stop exploring.

The Stoen Mind began with our love for imagination and stories.

Stories in books, stories people carry, stories we tell ourselves, stories we outgrow, and stories that somehow find us at just the right time.

Along the way, we found ourselves wandering into philosophy, reflection, curiosity, and all the strange and wonderful places the mind likes to go.

And the more we explored, the more we realised that the mind is not really a thing to be solved.

It is more like a sky. Always present and expansive.

And somewhere within it drifts a cloud. A cloud of thoughts, feelings, imaginings, questions, and countless other things that pass through us.

Sometimes light and playful.

Sometimes vast and mysterious.

Sometimes full of questions.

Sometimes carrying a storm.

Sometimes taking shapes that seem to mean something.

Sometimes simply floating by.

The Stoen Mind is a space for that cloud.

A place where you can sit beside it for a while.

Observe it.

Wonder about it.

Rest beside it.

Follow where it leads.

Shape it if you wish.

Or let it shape itself.

Or simply rest and let it all be.

...Now we want you to come along with us.

So, we created small portals for you to travel into that space.

Through stories, journals, workbooks, reflections, and other thoughtful things that invite you to explore your own Stoen Mind.

Things that add a little lightness and spaciousness, and somehow become difficult to part with.
